THE PREATURES

The Preatures' new single boasts a sunny chorus with a difference – will commercial radio be brave enough to spin a pop song with Indigenous language?

As Izzi Manfredi croons the opening lines, "People say it's not cool / to be sweet like you", the Preatures' latest single already feels like a classic aged in the long days of a late-80s Aussie summer. The wide-open-road guitars sound like they should be beaming out from a car radio with a sand-dusted, heat-warped dash, back-announced alongside old Fleetwood Mac and new Lorde. But there's an extra magic element in the textured tumble of the B chorus: Manfredi's voice mingling with that of her collaborator on the track, Darug songwoman and educator Jacinta Tobin, both singing in Dharug language.

'Yanada' (which is Dharug for 'moon') is the third single from The Preatures' second album Girlhood, released on Friday, and began as a song about female friendship, feminine energy and the natural world. But as Manfredi worked on the song, she felt that it was actually telling an Indigenous story, and decided it was important to include an Indigenous voice. Through a year-long process of consultation, research and learning the history of her hometown, Manfredi was introduced to Tobin, took her language classes, and they wrote the shimmering B-chorus together in one of the Sydney basin's Indigenous languages.

2017 has been a year where Indigenous language is gaining more mainstream radio exposure, from triple j Unearthed's hip hop rising star Baker Boy flipping between Yolngu Matha and English in 'Cloud 9' to Kardajala Kirridara's gorgeous marriage of downtempo production and harmonies drawing on traditional sung stories, which has enjoyed a warm welcome across community radio. So it feels as though 'Yanada' arrives at a turning point, where radio and audiences are both making a deliberate and positive effort to bring Indigenous-language pop in from the world-music margins.

But while Manfredi believes that the hundreds of languages and dialects native to the places where Australians make music should certainly be more of a part of everyday culture, she also wanted to avoid any sense of "taking" or appropriating language without doing her homework.

"We were very, very aware of the current discourse about appropriation and I did not want to go down that road at all," she explains to TMN in a phone interview from the band's Sydney studio, two days out from the album release.

"And again the response I got back from community was that non-Indigenous people singing in language with proper permissions was a really positive thing, and in fact something that the Darug tribal council saw as vital to the language revitalisation."
"I'm not the first non-Indigenous person to be singing in language," Manfredi added. "There's been artists all over Australia that have formed connections with Indigenous communities and brought out songs that are in Indigenous language." However, from what Manfredi understands, they're the first band to follow the protocols and engage in that process so meticulously.

"So in that respect, it's setting a precedent for how artists actually engage with indigenous communities," she continued.

"I actually think if the song starts a conversation about the way we use language in this country. I think is actually a really positive thing."

At the Preatures' album launch in Brunswick Heads last Thursday – which began with a lyrical Welcome to Country from a young member of the Bundjalung nation – Manfredi gave the audience some background on the song, including her initial hesitations and the work the band did to make the song in the right way, and related the near-universal response from community: "We need non-Indigenous people speaking and singing in language, or the languages won't live."

It echoes what she'd told TMN on the phone the previous day: that she wants to see Indigenous languages "living in the mainstream", as Maori language does in New Zealand.

"I want them on 104.1 [2Day FM]," she says emphatically. "I want to hear them on mainstream radio – and there's a possibility that this song might not do that. But if it makes it a little bit easier for the next collaboration to happen and the next collaboration to happen. These languages are part of us all and it requires everybody to learn the languages, engage with them and to understand the culture from where they come from."

"I think it's important to have the detailed, complex discussions around language. But it's also important to have the broader spirit, which pop is the perfect vehicle for."

And right now might just be the time for that to happen. After all, this is the year of 'Despacito' dominating the airplay charts – and if a reggaeton track half sung in Spanish can become one of the biggest hits of the year, why not a classic-throwback pop song with a catchy, sun-soaked chorus and a uniquely Australian heart?

"I love everything these guys do - but more than just a catchy track, 'Yanada' highlights the power of cultural collaboration, especially with the Indigenous community. Also - Izzi's voice is magic. As usual." - Ash London, Hit Network.

STRIP THAT DOWN

Liam Payne | EMI

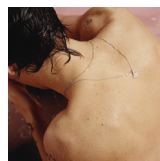

The Top 3 get a reshuffle on this week's TMN Hot 100, while a country crossover success story makes some solid ground.

Now on its fourth straight week at #1, Liam Payne's 'Strip That Down' ft. Quavo refuses to budge. His buddy Niall Horan slips a spot to #3 as DJ Khaled, Rihanna and Bryson Tiller swoop in to take his place (and a new high) with 'Wild Thoughts'.

There are three other new peaks in the Top 10 this week as Jessica Mauboy, Rita Ora and Calvin Harris stake their claims.

Mauboy finds herself in the Top 5 with slow-burner 'Fallin' after a seven-week stint in the chart, while Rita Ora's 'Your Song' cements her place, jumping four spots to #6. It's Ora's highest ever position on the Hot 100, surpassing 'How We Do (Party)'s high of #7.

Now at #12 from #18, Sam Hunt sits on the precipice of breaking into the Top 10 with 'Body Like A Back Road'. While on the topic of country, making a very noteworthy debut at #42 is Morgan Evans' 'Kiss Somebody'. An incredible feat for a country artist – Evans' crossover is well-and-truly underway.

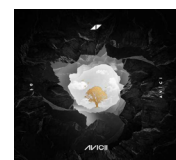

#1 MOST ADDED TO RADIO

TWO GHOSTS

Harry Styles | SME

This time around it's 'Two Ghosts', the latest single lifted from Harry Styles' debut self-titled album. The track actually scores a debut on the Hot 100 at #31, the highest for the week. Of course, it pales in comparison to his debut single which secured both #1 Most Added and simultaneously set the record for highest ever debut on the Hot 100, entering at #3.

The aforementioned 'Two Ghosts' has quite a considerable lead on the chart, with the next two commercial singles earning substantially less adds. Josh Gibbons' 'P.Y.T. (Pretty Young Thing)' and Dua Lipa's 'New Rules' hold the #2 and #3 positions respectively, with the remainder of the chart consisting of triple j adds.

#1 NEW SINGLE RELEASE

WITHOUT YOU

Avicii ft. Sandro Cavazza | UMA

Two huge artists make their stellar comebacks this week. EDM behemoth Avicii has marked his return with his AVICI (yep, only one "i" at the end) EP. Packed full of bangers, one of which is serviced this week: 'Without You' ft. Sandro Cavazza, which is a true return to form (not that he ever showed signs of falling out of it).

P!NK is back with 'What About Us', her anthemic first single from her forthcoming seventh album, Beautiful Trauma. It's the first time radio will have heard from the icon since featuring on Stargate's 'Waterfall' alongside Sia. No doubt radio has been waiting with bated breath.

Ella Eyre has also released a delightful cut in 'Ego' featuring Ty Dolla $ign, while Kungs just put out 'More Mess' featuring Olly Murs & Coely. The latter is an undeniable hit and ought to jolt Australian radio's memory on why it fell in love with Murs in the first place.

RADIO WRAP

Two weeks ago she was Most Added, now Dua Lipa is the #1 Heatseeker, with 'New Rules' now at #27 from #57.

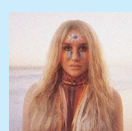

On the Breaker chart, Thomas Rhett hints at continuing this recent trend of country artists crossing over into the Hot 100; he's currently at #1 with 'Unforgettable'.

Mirroring the Hot 100 is Nova and Hit with both leaving #1 on their respective Spins Charts to Liam Payne's 'Strip That Down' ft. Quavo. Meanwhile triple j has thrown all their weight behind The Jungle Giants' 'Bad Dream'. Triple M reaffirm their loyalty to Bernard Fanning with 'Isn't It A Pity' reigning supreme.

Vance Joy establishes himself at #1 on the Shazam future hits chart with 'Lay It On Me', with country-crossover hit 'Kiss Somebody' by Morgan Evans giving chase at #2. Evans' move into the mainstream is going swimmingly, so much so that he tops this week's Shazam Movers chart.

Punjabi Canadian hip hop artist Nav has made a move to the top of the Pandora Trendsetters chart this week, propelled by the release of his latest mixtape Perfect Timing. D.C. rapper GoldLink has already been a top performer on both Trendsetters and Predictions. Now, he's officially hit all three of the charts as 'Crew', a single off his April album At What Cost, hits #69 on Top Spins. The song's success has helped GoldLink see a steady rise in artist station adds, this week reaching close to 4,000 weekly adds. He's also seeing over 1,000 track station adds per week.

NEW SINGLE SPOTLIGHT

KEEP UP

MOZA | UMA

'Keep Up' sees MOZA (aka Cam Nacson and Toby Chew Lee) go deep musically and emotionally, reflecting on the nature of the music industry.

Written when the pair had just quit their day jobs to throw their energy into music full time, the track came together in just one night but they knew straight away that they had their next single. With soulful, visceral vocals and dirty sub-bass, it's a song from the heart. The melancholic aspects are tempered with a sense of stoicism though, reflected in the new music video produced by YeahSure.

Named as one of the 17 Electronic Artists To Watch in 2017 by Pilerats, MOZA place a strong emphasis on performance, bringing huge energy, live instruments and all of the lights to create emotional and mesmerising shows. This love of stagecraft has seen them support high-profile acts Paces, Kilter, Touch Sensitive, Running Touch, Hayden James, and L-FRESH the LION.

OVERVIEW

While Jessica Mauboy and Vance Joy remain locked at #1 and #2 for another week on the Australian chart, Morgan Evans scores a sneaky debut at #3 with 'Kiss Somebody'. It enters ahead of the first upward movement, Teddy Cream & Szabo's collaboration on 'Horses', now at #4 from #5 (a new peak). Dean Lewis debuts at #5 with 'Lose My Mind', while The Jungle Giants enter at #10 with 'Bad Dreams', now seeing success across almost every part of the Australian Singles Report. If that wasn't enough, it owns #1 on the Alternative chart and triple j Hit List chart too.

Vance Joy's dominion over the AIR charts remains intact for another week, still #1 on both the Singles And Radio Play chart with 'Lay It On Me'. His hold is so strong that he actually occupies spots 1, 3 and 5 on the AIR Singles chart.
