PNAU:

PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE

PNAU

How do you follow up 'Chameleon', one of radio's favourite songs from 2016? With a nod to the past and a visit to another dimension, according to PNAU's Nick Littlemore. By Elise Ferrari

Speaking to Nick Littlemore from PNAU, it's hard not to get caught up in his energy. His conversation tumbles from one topic to another in these rolling waves, sharing vast ideas and intimate memories with anyone that cares to listen.

The duo turned trio (thanks to the official addition of Nick's younger brother, Sam Littlemore) have been around the local Sydney music scene since 1999. But more recently has come the release of some of the most infectious music to hit radio's airwaves. The nonsensical lyrics of both 'Wild Strawberries' in 2007 and 'Chameleon' in 2016 were somehow made radio-ready thanks to catchy beats and general summer vibes.

Yet it's his long love affair with radio where our conversation begins.

When asked about whether or not radio still has a place for new music by an electronic artist like himself, he shares an incredible anecdote from his childhood that really establishes how he - and in turn his music - operates.

"Radio is something I grew up listening to and a lot of things I've discovered through the radio," he told TMN.

"When I was about 10 or 11, I got my first cassette deck and I was able to record, so I would record triple j as I was falling asleep. And then in the morning, I would listen back to all the music that was being transmitted that I didn't hear."

"I discovered some crazy songs. This New York performance artist by the name of Karen Finley, I mean, it was more obscenities than I'd ever heard in my young life at that point!"

Littlemore believes that there was a magical sense to those late-nights, when things "seemed more taboo" and "you kind of had to wait, when it would go into Adult Only territory".

Not only is there this sense of magic and wonder that Littlemore brings to his music today, but he still believes in the power of radio to deliver unknown music to eager ears.

Breakthrough single 'Chameleon' peaked at #9 on the TMN Hot 100 in January 2017

In the space of three weeks, the track catapulted from #82 to its peak position

'Chameleon' made it as far as #4 on the ARIA Singles Chart

It spent four uninterrupted weeks at #1 on the Hot 100 Australian Chart.

"I think it's really cool, because [radio] reaches people who didn't realise they were gonna be reached.

"It's much more directive, even with brand advertising and all this stuff, where it all sorts of seamlessly turns up on your page. But for the most part, it'll be a page that you're already somewhat interested in, dance music, or whatever."

"But on the radio, it could be anything. They could be playing a Slim Dusty record and then they play Chameleon or an old Pnau song, or one of my other bands. I love that."

"I still get letters and messages from people hearing Empire [of the Sun] or PNAU many years after it first came out, and they're so excited that they found them. Someone who listens to heavy metal, but this song came out on the radio and they went, 'Oh, it wasn't my style of music, but it really touched me and now I'm a huge fan'".

Don't be mistaken. A love of radio does not leave Littlemore in the past. Far from it.

While PNAU's music continues to reference the warehouse parties Littlemore and bandmate Peter Mayes used to sneak out and attend back in high school, it's more about being both present, and exploring the future, in this dimension and beyond.

"I like to come at it, anything, with the music that I create, I like to have a lot of elements from the past and from the future and everything in between."

"I think, for Pnau, at its best, has always been a collision of colour and excitement and exuberance, however that manifests."

Talking about the new album Changa, due for release on November 10, Littlemore notes that the previous album Soft Universe was far more introspective - a "red herring" in their musical career - compared to the upcoming release.

"We're much more celebratory and it just makes sense. It synchronises well with our spirit. I'd love to be more intellectual, but ultimately, when we get in the studio, I'm like a child that wants to jump and scream and run around and that's the energy that we put out that has served us really well and there's nothing wrong with having a good time."

As for the origin of the album's name, Changa references an Australian-born smoking blend that "opens up doors to other realities".

"I had the privilege of experiencing in the right setting. It's been such an enriching experience to have these sort of waking dreams and come back from the other side... To come back with this sort of explosion in my mind, it felt pertinent in my mind."

Littlemore may be a wordsmith, but when asked to summarise the new album in just five words, he is very precise.

"True hallucinations from mystic destinations".

We'll just have to wait and see what trip PNAU takes us on next.

#1 HOT 100

PERFECT

Ed Sheeran | WMA

The top four spots on the TMN Hot 100 remain steady for another week. The first sign of movement comes at #5 as P!NK's 'What About Us' climbs one frame as a number of acts drop out of the Top 10.

After peaking at #4 on the Hot 100, Jessica Mauboy's 'Fallin' is surging back up the chart. It's at #27 this week, climbing eight frames. Meanwhile, follow-up soundtrack single 'Then I Met You' loses traction this week and plummets to #31 from #24.

Inches away from securing another Most Added crown a fortnight ago, Guy Sebastian is cruising at #33 this week with 'Bloodstone'. Hit stations are doing their part to support the track as are both KIIS stations. Sebastian is surely eyeing another Top 10 appearance, his last being 'Black & Blue' in late 2015.

#1 MOST ADDED TO RADIO

WOLVES

Selena Gomez & Marshmello | UMA

Selena Gomez & Marshmello's 'Wolves' is a real winner taking out Most Added this week. The track saw unanimous adoption across commercial radio in Australia. KIIS, Nova and most of the Hit network added the track on full rotation, while Ash London LIVE and the ACE Radio network were also firm supporters.

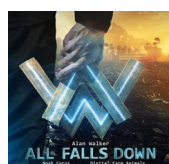

Another Universal release - 'Whatever It Takes' by Imagine Dragons - crossed the line in second place. The single had similar adds throughout the week, but as so often happens, the lack of support from KIIS cost the song a shot at #1.

Gavin James was a real sleeper this week with 'Hearts On Fire'. Both KIIS stations adopted the track across the board - one of only two tracks added to the network this week.

MOST ADDED

Additions weighted with audience data

1	WOLVES Selena Gomez & Marshmello
2	WHATEVER IT TAKES Imagine Dragons   UMA
3	BEEN MEANING TO TELL YOU Starley   TINT
4	HEARTS ON FIRE Gavin James   MUSHROOM
5	WAY OUT 360   EMI

#1 NEW SINGLE RELEASE

ALL FALLS DOWN

Alan Walker | SME

Producer Alan Walker drops new single 'All Falls Apart' with a pair of featured appearances from Noah Cyrus and Digital Farm Animals. Walker's been to the top tier of the Hot 100 before with 2015's 'Faded' peaking at #4.

Melbourne artist Tyron Hapi bursts on to the scene with 'Anyway' ft. Mimoza. Although relatively unknown to radio, the 19-year-old has dropped an electro infused banger that is worthy of commercial adds over the coming weeks.

Only two weeks on from 'Gorgeous', Taylor Swift drops yet another single off her upcoming album. 'Call It What You Want' may not be the primest cut Taylor has to offer, but commercial will be raring to get on board as the album release date edges closer.

RADIO WRAP

Taylor Swift jumps a collective 51 spots on the Hot 100 with new singles '...Ready For It' and 'Gorgeous', but the biggest mover on the chart this week was Craig David's 'Heartline' which catapulted 38 frames to #52.

Despite Portugal. The Man's 'Feel It Still' sliding to #8 on the Hot 100, it's now the most spun track on both the KIIS and Nova networks. Triple M continues its unwavering dedication to U2's 'You're The Best Thing About Me', while Peking Duk is going nowhere soon on triple j.

“ ONES TO WATCH

Hovey Benjamin's 'Send Bobs' is still #1 on this week's Spotify Viral chart, while its predecessor 'Man's Not Hot' by Big Shaq has dropped to #6.

Guy Sebastian's 'Bloodstone' has jumped one-third of the TMN Hot 100 this week, going from #68 to #33. This comes as no surprise to Shazam who have the track at #7 on their Movers chart this week and #5 on their Future Hits chart.

NEW SINGLE SPOTLIGHT

TOTAL MELTDOWN

DZ Deathrays | I OH YOU

Littering their signature thrash-party attitude over 'Total Meltdown', DZ have produced a song that is rambunctious, loud, and undeniably fun. Seeing its first glimmer of light as a riff during pre-production for standalone single 'Blood On My Leather' in early 2016, the idea kept popping up according to Parsons: "It took about 6 attempts at a chorus until we came up with what it is now, which is why the lyrics in the chorus have nothing to do with those in the verse. It's a little disjointed lyrically but it's become a big anthem of the new record and a favourite of ours!"

OVERVIEW

Topping four of the charts this week is Peking Duk, who have managed to keep the #1 spot on the Australian Hot 100 with their track 'Let You Down'. It's also #1 on the triple j Hit List, #1 on the Shazam Future Hits chart and #1 on the triple j Spins chart. Not only this, but the track is coming in second on the Alternative Hot 100 to Aussie-duo Hockey Dad. Their song 'Homely Feeling' is this week's Alternative #1 and is also #3 on the triple j Hit List and triple j Spins chart.

Hayden James' recent track 'NUMB' has grown in popularity over the past week coming in at #2 on the triple j Hit List, #4 on the Alternative Hot 100, #6 on the Shazam Future Hits chart, #2 on the AIR Singles chart and the second-most spun track on triple j this week. Could James' track be next to remove Vance Joy from the #1 spot on the AIR charts?
